Hartford Business Journal Names Top Diversity Advocates
APTMetrics' Dr. Kathleen Kappy Lundquist Wins
2010 Policy/Advocacy--Individual Award

Darien, CT: October 19th, 2010 -- APTMetrics, Inc. today announced that Dr. Kathleen Kappy Lundquist, CEO, has been chosen as the recipient of the 2010 Diversity Policy/Advocacy—Individual award from the Hartford Business Journal.

The goal of these awards in diversity in Connecticut is to recognize those who are making significant progress and are leaders in defining and disseminating best practices in diversity and inclusion in the marketplace.

Dr. Lundquist, a resident of Rowayton, is a nationally-recognized organizational psychologist who testifies frequently as an expert witness in employment discrimination class-action lawsuits for both defendants and plaintiffs. As a result of class-action settlements, she also serves as a court-appointed expert in diversity measurement and the design and implementation of legally defensible human resources processes for organizations such as Morgan Stanley, The Coca-Cola Company, Abercrombie & Fitch, Ford Motor Company, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

“I am delighted to be recognized for my work in diversity measurement by the Hartford Business Journal,” said Lundquist. “I am impressed by the significant contributions my fellow awardees have made in the area of diversity and inclusion in Connecticut and beyond. It is an honor to be included in such an esteemed group,” she said.

Other award recipients are: William J. Anthony Esq., Partner, Jackson Lewis LLP who is the Leadership-Individual category winner; Pepperidge Farm who is the Leadership-Organization category winner and The (Woodstock, CT) Discovery Center who is the Innovation-Organization category winner. The awards will be presented at the 2010 Hartford Business Journal's Diversity and Inclusion Conference October 27, 2010 at the Farmington Marriott.
